When he does his homework he often makes a lot of mistakes because he doesn't pay attention to what he is writing. One day, his language teacher was very surprised when he read Ben's composition about his Christmas holidays. There weren't any mistakes in the composition, which was very unusual. Ben's teacher was really happy, but he couldn't believe that Ben had such a perfect work. He called Ben to his desk and asked him, "Did you do your composition by yourself?"
